

Communicator To Present 'Campus Queen Contest'

The COMMUNICATOR takes great pride in announcing the most important contest to be presented at CCP since its inception.

The "MISS CCP CONTEST" is coming to the college and the young lady who wins will reign over the student body at all of the college's functions.

Because of the great honor that comes with being chosen "MISS CCP," the judging will be done by staff members of the COMMUNICATOR and selected members of the faculty.

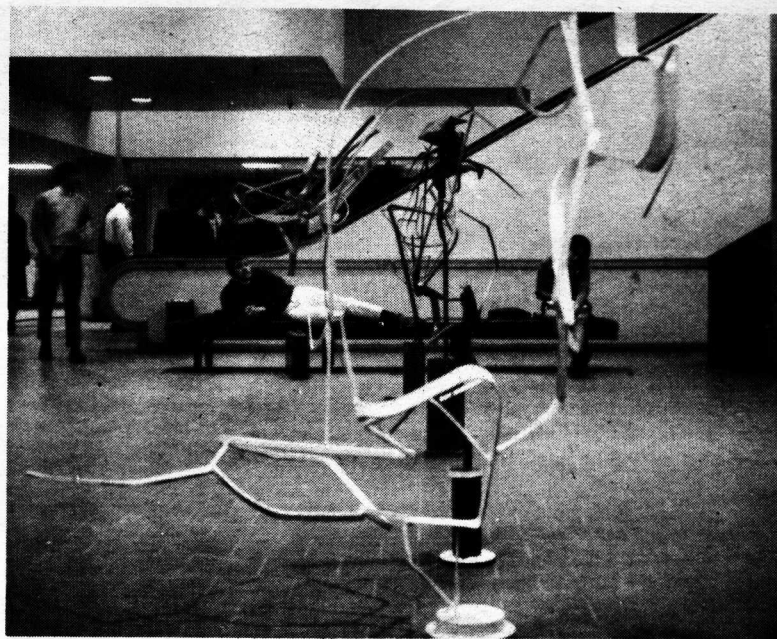

Ground rules for the contest are as follows:

- 1.) All contestants must be unmarried female students of CCP. (either full or part-time).
- 2.) The contestants must have at least a 2.0 average.
- 3.) Each contestant must fill out the official COMMUNICATOR entry blank. (see page 4).
- 4.) The entry blank must be submitted to the COMMUNICATOR office by December 1, 1967.
- 5.) A preliminary contest will be held, Thursday, December 7, at 11, in room 511.
- 6.) From this contest will be chosen 10 semi-finalists.
- 7.) The pictures of the 10 girls will be run in the December 13, issue of the COMMUNICATOR. 8.) The winner, with three members of her court, will be announced at the home game with Luzern County, Saturday night, December 16.

Prizes and awards will be bestowed upon the 10 semi-finalists and the lucky girl who will be "MISS CCP" for 1967-68.

The COMMUNICATOR feels that this is the chance of a life time, for some young girl. The opportunity to represent one's own college as its official ambassador comes to a young lady perhaps but once.

Ten Cheerleaders To Lead Colonials To Victory

After five weeks of training and practice, during the Tuesday and Thursday free periods and on Monday from 3 to 5 p.m., the try-outs for CCP's cheerleaders were held.

On Monday, November 20, from 3-5 p.m. in room 713, the cheerleaders went through their paces before a staff of judges which included Miss Jefferies of the Biology Dept. and girl's tennis; Mr. Henry Varlack, Assistant in Admission and Financial Aid and Choral Director; and Miss Beverly Pickford, Secretary to the Assistant Dean of Students and Coach of the cheerleaders.

Ten girls were chosen on the basis of:

1. Well defined hand and foot motion.
2. Overall ability and execution of cheers.
3. Pep and personality.
4. Appearance.
5. Voice clarity, pronunciation, and volume.

The finalists and this year's cheerleaders are: Rita Foust, Ginger Hardy, Maxine Holmes, Linda James, Marty Jones, Rochelle Kesselman, Linda Marshall, Diane Shaffer, Beverly Swkenick, and Donna Zitter.

The co-captains of the squad are Ginger Hardy and Diane Schaffer.

With the exception of the cheerleader squad, the basketball season here at CCP should be in full swing very soon.

The students of CCP can see the new cheerleader's at work during the first pep rally on Thursday, December 30.

Penn State

The deadline date for picking up your applications to the Capitol Campus of Penn State University from the reading room (if you signed a card requesting same), is Friday, December 15. After this date, applications will only be distributed upon request.

Temple Gears Itself For Transfers

In a direct change of policy with preceding years, Temple University is now in the process of gearing itself more towards incoming juniors from other colleges rather than to the freshman class, according to Mr. C. Kirk Greer, Director of the Office of Evaluation Temple, who spoke at the college on Thursday, November 16 in room 511.

"It has taken us awhile to reach this fundamental change in policy," said Mr. Greer, "but with the ever-increasing number of community and junior colleges taking over some of the load of freshman and sophomore students, we have now allotted more in the way of facilities for the incoming juniors."

Mr. Greer, in a talk before an overflow crowd, explained that the minimum academic average a CCP student could expect for transfer consideration is a 2.0. "But, naturally, this does not automatically guarantee admittance," he added.

A number of new course offerings and schools, such as the School of Communications, have opened recently at Temple. The expansion of the university, according to Mr. Greer, has been phenomenal, but the number of freshman they annually admit has been lowered, so as to fit in with the new transfer philosophy.

Mr. Greer explained that most of the courses presently being taken by CCP students are transferable, with the notable exception of some of the business courses. Because of this, he commented, some of the current business majors may find themselves several credits short for entering the junior class, although it will not necessarily bar them from transferring.

The reason for this, according to Mr. Greer, are the national business school standards, to which Temple subscribes. Although he admitted that in many cases this situation is inequitable, nothing as yet can be done about it.

He added that transfer candidates from other area colleges, such as St. Joseph's, are in the same situation.

Mr. Greer commented that re-taking of College Board and other achievement tests for transfer consideration are unnecessary. "We find them necessary only in the case of incoming freshman, whose college potential is as yet undetermined. Therefore, after two years at CCP, a suitable record demonstrates the college performance we are looking for," he explained.

A question and answer session followed the talk, during which Mr. Greer stayed over the allotted time to allow for more direct questions from interested students.

'Night to Cherish' Held; Annual Event A Success

By ED BAUMAN

Over 100 students danced to the music of the "Mainliners" at CCP's third annual semi-formal and it was indeed a "Night to Cherish."

The event, held at Park City West, near City Line avenue, was sponsored by the Social Committee of the Student Union Board.

The Mainliners played tunes such as "Chances Are" and "That's My Desire" that delighted the ears and hearts of the sentimental set at the college.

CCP's administration and faculty were represented at this annual affair. (But it was rumored that this hardy bunch were feeling the after-effects of the morning's student-faculty rough-touch football game.) The "Night to Cherish" forced many of the long hair and blue-jean set into their Sunday best. Eight-inch hair topping sharkskin suits were everywhere to be found.

Choir To Present Carols, New Programs

The Community College Choir, which has been rehearsing since August 1 under the direction of Mr. Henry Varlack, is giving its first performance for the season Sunday, December 10, at the Church of the Crucifixion, 620 south Eighth street, at 4 p.m. The admission will be free.

Featured will be tenor soloist, Wayne Commor, who is also tenor soloist for the Philadelphia Oratorio Society, under the direction of John Henzel.

A chorus of girls from the John Bartram High School will also be a part of the performance.

A four-boy choir of sopranos from the All-Philadelphia Elementary Schools will join our choir for a presentation of traditional Christmas carols and a cantata by Benjamin Britten.

Friday night, December 15, at 8:15 p.m., the choir will give a concert of traditional carols in room 511.

The German Society at Sixth and Spring Garden streets, will present the CCP Choir for a 3 o'clock performance of carols.

The Choir comprises some 85 members, including 13 part-time students and two faculty members, Mr. Richard Sussan and Mr. Snyder of the Biology Department.

Student accompanist for the choir's rehearsal's has been Mary Sykes. The audience, however, will see Mr. Gary Goldshnieder at the Bechstein.

Mr. Varlack suggests that the students get to all concerts early to assure a good seat.

West Chester

Students who have questions about West Chester State College are invited to submit questions to Mrs. Bolno in the reading room on the mezzanine before Friday, December 1. On that date a representative of that school will be meeting with the Counseling staff.

Issues and Answers

Abolish Apathy Now!

By MELVIN A. NIXON

The editors feel dissenting views are vital to a college campus. For this reason we establish "Issues and Answers" to disseminate such opinions, however they may differ from our editorial position.

There is a serious problem which is present in our college which cannot be resolved by any amount of administrative control. It is the type of problem which must be solved by each individual who possesses it. In the last "Issues and Answers" article, I wrote about the lack of understanding which many people had in reference to the protest movement concerning the war and specifically the protestors themselves. Since that article I have found that there is not only a problem on the part of those who don't understand the protestors, but also on the part of those who are completely disinterested. Yes, the problem is one which has been mentioned many times, the problem can be described in one word as being that of apathy.

It would seem that many of our students are quite interested in student affairs and activities which are connected with some pleasurable activity, but when the activity doesn't deal specifically with some form of enjoyment, student interest is lacking. I find too many students can be easily classified into this category.

On several occasions, I have walked about the school and listened to the conversations which were being held in several small clusters of people. On these occasions, I have expected to hear conversations concerning the problems of our world at present and also, quite naturally, those affairs which make up our own college environment. I had expected to hear discussions revolving around such topics as: Is there a possibility that Che Guevara is still alive? Have the Republican possibilities of a presidency in 1968 been overestimated? Is there a strong possibility that the United States may lose the race for space? Should the policy of a specific grading system be abolished at CCP? These are only a few examples of the many types of topics which could be discussed at great length. And instead of finding a discussion going on concerning topics such as these, I find such mediocre discussions as: Do you know how Mr. X got that scar on his cheek last night? What type of dress is what's-her-name wearing today? Should we eat corned beef or salami on rye for lunch? And, of course, several other topics which are just as unimportant as those which I have mentioned.

What ever happened to the type of student who is interested in the state of the nation and that of his college? Oh, I will admit that there are several students who are interested and who make their presence felt. For example, there is a new club which is now forming called the Political Action Committee that will deal with topics such as: Vietnam, Civil Rights, etc. The people who are and will be members of this club are exactly the type of students that many of us are not, but should be. They are aware, and what's more important, they are interested in more than their own trite little social world.

For a good example of student apathy in CCP one need only look at the Grievance Meetings which have been held on several occasions by the Student Government Association. The meetings were set up in order to afford the SGA an opportunity to become aware of the problems and complaints which the students have. I went to the first meeting and I was shocked to find that the number of students in attendance was embarrassing. Instead of finding a room that was completely filled with griping students I found that the number of Student Government Association senators nearly outnumbered the amount of students who were present. Some might say that the reason for this was because the school is literally problem free. I know, however, that when a few grievances exist (as represented by those students in attendance) then there are several others which just aren't being aired.

I find the condition of apathy which exists in our college completely revolting and most unbecoming to people who dare to call themselves college students! If this condition persists, I feel that instead of having a college which is run by the students and merely controlled by the administration, we will have a college which is completely administration oriented--and that, fellow students, is not a college at all! I'm quite sure that the administration does not want this condition to exist, the question is-----DO YOU?

In The Mail

Editor:

As an interested student and a professional free-lance writer, I would like to reply to a letter which appeared in your column "In The Mail" in the November 15 issue of the COMMUNICATOR.

The letter concerned the article "RAM vs. RIZZO," which I wrote exclusively for your publication.

In addressing the "anonymous writer," members of MAU stated that I was either blind or prejudiced because I had left much unsaid.

Number one, I did not deal with the happenings inside of Common Pleas Court 453, which, by the way, didn't exactly ring true with me either.

Second, I can only report what I saw, not having the power to reflect my personal opinion as I am doing in this column.

Your observations in general are based largely on Negro history where I would have to plead ignorance.

Whether the Negro policeman is a "Judas" or whether the police officer attempted to ravish the "beaded girl" is a matter of opinion.

The fact remains that there is a racial problem in the Community College of Philadelphia, and at a larger scale in the city of Philadelphia.

I say to you that the gap will be bridged by dialogue, such as the one that we are carrying on presently, not by violence which only tends to separate Americans into different factions.

The problem is too large to be faced by simply Afro-Americans, or by Irish-Americans, or by Jewish-Americans, etc.

In writing the article in question, I did so with the purpose of stimulating discussion on a problem which is stunting the growth of tradition and growth of school spirit here at CCP.

If "RAM vs. RIZZO" has done nothing but widen this gap between the factions, then I have failed miserably.

If the article has gotten some of the narrow-minded students and faculty members to take a long look at the most serious problem

Editorial Comment

Where Was His Honor?

Mayor James H. J. Tate has been elected by the citizens of Philadelphia to be its leader and guiding father for another four year term.

When the recent riots were in full swing in public schools throughout the Philadelphia area, where was Jim Tate?

He was in Miami Beach, Florida on a "working vacation."

When asked by reporters about this issue on his return to Philadelphia, at International Airport, he said that he didn't have all the facts on the disturbances and refused to answer questions until he could find out what was going on.

The suggestion that the mayor of Philadelphia "didn't have all the facts" while a near-emergency prevailed would be dismaying enough, if true, but strangely rings of deliberate political untruth.

Mayor Tate should realize that his victory in the recent election was hardly a clear mandate from the majority of the voters, but rather a "squeaker" in which the electorate was about as evenly divided as it could possibly be.

Stay home, Jim.

200 Million

The population of the United States recently reached the 200 million mark, and the figures are still growing. It has been estimated that if the trend continues, in another fifty years there will be standing room only for the people who inhabit the earth.

Scientists and laymen alike are concerned over what will become of the earth if overpopulation becomes the world's prime concern.

The exploration of space and the other planets may offer some relief to the earth's already over-depleted resources.

Biologists and sociologists agree that when a race of humans or a species of animals become closed in a space where they are not comfortable, they tend to develop characteristics and show signs that will eventually lead to their own destruction.

When rats are placed in an enclosed space, they become nervous, the natality rate declines, and the fatality rate rises.

The same may happen to the human race in another fifty years.

Remember, we have the key to our own destruction, the bomb. We also have the key to our own salvation, the mind. The former or the latter will be the answer to overpopulation, and it is we, today's college students, who must lead the human race to either of the two ends.

facing all Americans today, then I have scored a preliminary victory.

The problem is not just mine, but the eyesore which hits any student smack in the face when he walks into the main lobby or the vendeteria.

If some of the students have realized this problem it's not too late.

Tell the SGA, COMMUNICATOR and most important of all the rest of the student body about it.

Have you ever noticed, and how could you not, that there is a shortage of benches in the Grand Court of the Lobby? This shortage necessitates a certain percentage of the students to make a mad dash to them everyday. It seems that some great status is achieved by the depositing of one's posterior on the benches adjacent to the "UP" escalator. These people, the Northeast, Oxford Circle, Wynnefield, and Mt. Airy Hippies, who consider themselves the "Elite" of Community College of Philadelphia, have presented a serious crisis.

Not only has the administration seen fit to obliterate the floor lounges that once existed in the corners of the classrooms section, but they in turn, provided students with no place to rest and relax. The library cannot be used for this, and certainly not the lunchroom. The 5th floor is constantly being bombarded by bombastic sounds to astound.

Where, then, can we sit? The lobby is the only answer. These seats, however, are always taken by the same people. We appeal to the vinyl-booted, mini-skirted maidens and the mock-turtled, sansabelt-slacked gladiators of purported Italian masculinity to remove their carcasses and break away from the tedium of everyday bench warming. We realize that bench warming is an art, but should be appreciated by all.

Editor:

On Oct. 12, Mayor Tate spoke at CCP. Unfortunately after finishing his speech Mayor Tate did not have time to answer questions, but expressed a desire to do so.

Now that a forum has been set up in the school, I believe that it would only be appropriate to afford Mayor Tate the opportunity to return to CCP and be the first speaker to use this forum.

John Kurtz

Editor:

I would just like to point out to the irresponsible students of the fifth floor lounges that they are not the only people on the floor.

There are some students of the various organizations on the floor who are attempting to be sincere in their work.

The real funny thing is that many of these students, who also enjoy playing cards, etc., are working and sacrificing for them and many others.

Also, these students have shown in the past, their desire for a lounge. I just hope that they don't push the administration to remove the one or two we have left.

George L. Brown

Editor:

A great deal of controversy, both pro and con, has been going on lately in the COMMUNICATOR recent issues about Police Commissioner Frank L. Rizzo. Also there has been a good deal of talk among various student groups.

I think it is high time that this brutal, unthinking man be put in his place--which is definitely not the office he presently holds.

The fact that this city was, fortunately, spared from racial violence this summer is due not to Rizzo, nor Tate, but to a certain amount of pure luck.

P.A.C.

The Political Awareness Committee, PAC, is coming to Community College. The purpose of PAC will be to encourage student awareness, interest, and action, on political issues concerning Community College and the community at large.

The origination of the idea of PAC came about through informal general discussion between certain students and faculty members several weeks ago. Through this discussion it became apparent that an organization to achieve the above purpose was necessary. After about one week, approximately ten students showed active interest in forming an organization and an off-campus meeting was held. At that meeting a constitution was formed and a coordinating committee elected. Since that time, a subsequent meeting has been held off campus to more clearly formulate the purposes of PAC. Up to this time efforts have been made to have PAC recognized as an on campus organization, and hopefully, recognition is forth-coming.

PAC will hold a general membership meeting in room 215, 11 o'clock, Nov. 30. Anyone interested may attend at that time when the organization and its purposes will be discussed.

PAC will deal with issues such as the draft, the war in Vietnam, civil rights, student power, free speech, and student apathy. On these issues the hope is to make the students aware of all the facts, how the issues effect the student and to encourage action on a particular position. In order to inform the students PAC will distribute leaflets, bring in speakers, print position papers, hold meetings, and have direct contact with the students.

Penny Poems

On campuses across the country there are what are quaintly called "penny poems." In CCP's attempt to keep up with academic tradition, we are endeavoring to put out a literary sheet along this format. The aim is to encourage unpublished authors. Unlike our patriarchal friends of the Literary Magazine, "Basilisk," we do not seek perfection, only 'experimental' literature. We want to print poems, short prose, fillers, and even graffiti. If you have some form of literature which you would like to see in print, bring it or sent it to Room 520. Now, go home, dig up that poem your girlfriend or boyfriend liked and give it to us!

Sculpture By Brenner To Be Presented Friday

Bernard Brenner, a well-known Philadelphia sculptor, will present his works in the main lobby at an official opening on Friday, Dec. 1, 1967 at 8 p.m.

There are 17 pieces being shown, two of which have won awards from the City of Philadelphia. One of Mr. Brenner's pieces can be seen at the airport.

The exhibit was formerly shown at the Makler Gallery and will remain at CCP for three weeks.

Mr. Brenner is a professor of design at Drexel Institute of Technology. He was originally a resident of West Philadelphia and has traveled quite extensively through Europe.

Moulderin' In The Grave

By HOWARD M. MILLER

In 1929 Stephen Vincent Benet won the Pulitzer Prize for his play "John Brown's Body." All I can say is that they must have been pretty hard up for plays then.

The National Repertory Theater's production at the Shubert Theater (where they are alternating "JBB" with Shakespeare's "Comedy of Errors") is, at best, a mistake...a gross mistake in judgment on the part of whomever dragged the play out of mothballs for presentation here.

The play is basically a two-hour epic narrative poem, which starts out with John Brown's raid on Harpers Ferry and goes painfully through the Civil War, telling us repeatedly that "war is hell."

The same can be said for sitting through Mr. Benet's cliché-ridden piece of theatrics.

Even if we excuse the banality of Benet's play, we still have to contend with the performance of the NRT, which is none too good. Marching about the stage like tin soldiers, speaking their lines with all the pomposity and stuffed-shirtedness of a funeral director, the actors of the company show very little originality.

Of course, to give credit where credit's due, we have to congratulate Jack Sydow, the perpetrator and director of this abomination, for his complete lack of ingenuity.

The only good acting in the entire production is that of G. Wood, as Lincoln, without the usual Lincoln props of beard and stovepipe hat.

The lighting is good.

The checkerboard floor design is interesting.

But...

"John Brown's Body" should never have been exhumed, but left "a moulderin' in the grave."

about everything. One aging and not so powerful administrator who is known for his dancing prowess (and also his basketball and football stamina) sternly commented, "I came here to polka and all that this band can play is the funky-broadway and a poor version of Golden Slippers."

The usual group of wallflowers wrinkled the rears of their suits and dresses while watching their stomping and strolling cohorts dance around the floor. Stan Levin, SGA President and well known jitterbug, led the dancing for most of the evening.

After the dance broke up at 1 a.m. the weary couples went on their way to all parts of the city to calm their frayed nerves and fill their growling stomachs.

The tastes and the wallets of the tired dancers caused one amazed student, who asked to remain anonymous, to comment, "This must be the weirdest group of people that I have ever seen...some (students) went to the Kona-Kai and some to Nick's Roast in South Philadelphia. Some went parking on side streets and still others went right home after the dance."

CCP Cross Country Team

Cross Country Squad Ends First Season

CCP's cross country team ended their regular season play on Saturday, November 11 with a 27 to 28 victory over Bucks County Community College.

This was the first time that the Community Colonials have entered a team in the college competition.

This victory, witnessed by Mr. Charles Dougherty who just happens to be Director of Student Activities, gave the colonials a good season record of two wins and four losses.

The team had hoped to break even (3-3), but lost their next to last meet of the season by two points to Philadelphia Textile, 28 to 30.

With the Colonials' number one runner, Bill Shannon, out with a badly injured ankle, the team had to put a little extra effort in this final meet.

As usual, the Colonials rose to the occasion by placing five men in the top eight positions.

Bucks took the first two positions but after that everything was CCP all the way.

The first Colonial to cross the finish line was John Smith, who covered the 3.5 mile college course in a time of 16:58 setting a new school record.

Within the next thirty-four seconds, four more Colonials crossed the finish line.

They were: Howard James, finishing fourth, John Bilkins, fifth place, Jim McAvinue, seventh place, and Bob Gleason, who placed eighth.

Also finishing for CCP were Pat Maloney, 11th, and Brian Sullivan, who placed thirteenth.

With only two weeks pre-season practice, the Colonials made a very impressive showing for a school in its first season in the sport.

Opponents during the season were: Temple University, West Chester State, Philadelphia Textile, Bucks County Community College, and an invitational meet with six other school's at Northeast Christian Junior College.

With only two sophomores, Jim McAvinue and Bob Gleason, on the team this year.

Things will really look bright for next year, when there will be six lettermen returning.

The Colonials will compete in the Greater Philadelphia Junior College championship, which will be held sometime later in November on Belmont Plateau.

Any Freshmen or Sophomores interested in indoor or outdoor track is asked to get in touch with the Director of Student Activities in Room 514.

Faculty Romps Over Students By One Score

The students met the faculty, Friday morning, Nov. 24, on the field of battle at 26th and Pine streets, for a game of "touch" football.

Mr. Charles (THE BOMBER) Dougherty captained the faculty squad to a one score victory late in the fourth quarter over the, game to the very end, students.

Quarterback, Henry (The Back Peddler) Varlack threw many a long and powerful pass to his hapless teammates who met strong opposition from the sterling efforts of the student defensive squad.

Captain of the combined SGA and Communicator squad, Joe Roseto, pledged revenge and added that a re-match would be played in the near future.

Coach Burton Speaks Out On Colonial Basketball Squad

By JIM LAFFERTY

On Friday night, the CCP basketball team will open its season against the team from Robert Morris Junior College in St. Matthew's gym on Cottman avenue in the Northeast.

In looking at this year's team, Coach Jim Burton compared to the conference winning team of last year.

"This year they are much smaller and quicker," stated Burton.

He commented that last year there were some taller men which made for a very strong offense.

Coach Burton stated that this year's squad has much more possible starters for Friday night's game.

He said that he already has a pretty good idea who four of them will be, but the fifth position is up for grabs among the other five members.

John Cassidy and Joe Burton are the co-captains for this season.

Running low on interview questions, I asked Mr. Burton what he thought of the rather poor student attendance in the past?

"You could use the word pathetic," he commented in a half humorous, half-sick tone.

He said that it really didn't matter to him, but a crowd does give the team a lift.

On the other hand, he recalled the situation last week when he was scouting the team from St. Joseph's College.

"You would have to give them fifteen points," he noted, "the way their fans were cheering for them and heckling the other team."

In looking at the apathy here at the college, he said that it is "really ridiculous."

"I would appreciate it if you would get the kids out," stated Burton.

How do you get everybody out to watch a team which took the title in its first year?

Who is going to back a winner?

It's like the old riddle about does a tree make any noise when it falls and there is nobody there to hear it?

Does a team really win when there is nobody there to see it?

One example which he cited was when it took him one month to teach last year's players the various patterns.

"This year, we spent two weeks on the patterns," stated Burton with a noticeable amount of pride.

He said that the defense will be a 2-1-2, basically, but it will vary according to the game situation.

The coach said that the object of the last few practices is to build up the defense.

"This will have to be the strong point," noted the coach.

Who will be the starters? Burton said that there are nine
